Mr. J. B. Hess, who was here Monday on a visit to the Columbia Tailoring Company's office, stated that his company has recently put in about 15 additional branch houses. "Does advertising pay? Well, I guess it does. Our business last year increased 42 per cent and we ascertain it to advertising. I will run an advertisement in The Daily Intelligencer knowing that it will bring results." Mr. F. M. Unger is the local manager.

Mr. Monroe Bannister was in the city Monday with his hand all wrapped up, and he said it was to keep the cold out of a bone felon. Monroe has some bad company, sure and we trust that it will soon leave him.

Mr. J. H. Brissett, who is in charge of the mill at High Shoals, is a good miller. How do we know? The proof of the pudding is chewing the bag, and the proof of the flour is eating the bread.

What makes Anderson county great? It is not the great crops, it is not the great water power; it is not the great development of the mill industry. The thing that makes Anderson great is the spirit of her great people. There was in Anderson Saturday a splendid type of man, one to whom kings could gracefully bow. This was Mr. Tom J. Stucky, who lives near the Abbeville county line. His grandfather came to this country from England, and was massacred in his home by the Tories. He had come on a furlough from the star fort at Cambridge (Ninety Six) to his home at Due West, and was murdered the first night at home. Mr. Stucky himself is in his 82nd year, but his looks are but slightly touched with gray; his carriage is erect, his back as straight as that of any cadet, and his eyes has a sparkle and humor of youth. He would pass for 55 anywhere. Mr. Stucky was in the War of Secession, in the 14th regiment, commanded by Col. J. Newton Brown of this city, who also is in his 82nd year. It makes a young man feel that South Carolina is something, to meet such a sterling, splendid man as Mr. Stucky.

Mr. John T. Milford, elected supervisor and resigned, was in the city Monday with his face all in smiles. I am out of politics and am perfectly happy," he said. "My conscience is clear and I feel good all over."

CHURCH NEWS

At the first Presbyterian church Sunday morning it was announced that there remained a debt of several hundred dollars on account of the addition that had been made last year for the Sunday school and for the Fraser Academy. A collection was taken without previous notice being given, and over half of the debt was liquidated at once. There remains about $1,500 to be paid off.

The Intelligencer received too late for its last issue a letter from the Rev. S. W. Danner stating that the members of Ethel church would have an old time "working" day last Saturday. The congregation met at the appointed time and covered the church by working from 1 to 5.50. The ladies served a good supper and it is reported that if the wages were commensurate with the work the Rev. J. W. Speake of Anderson was the hardest worked man on the job. He enjoyed the supper.
